NUMBER OF FARMS LESS BUT VALUE IS GREATER

Census Report for Vermont Products Shows Increase in Number and Value

The number of farms in Vermont, according to the recent census, is 95,075. These farms contain 4,235,811 acres, of which 1,691,595 acres are improved land. Since 1910, the number of farms has decreased 11.1 per cent and the total acreage 9.2 per cent, but the improved acreage has increased 3.5 per cent. Seventy-two and five-tenths of the land area of the State is in farms, and 59.9 per cent of the farm land is improved.

The value of all farm property is $222,726,629 as compared with $145,399,728 in 1910, an increase of 43.2 per cent. The value of land and buildings is $159,117,459; of implements and machinery $21,224,120; and of live stock, $42,385,050. As compared with 1910, the value of land and buildings for 1920 shows an increase of 41.8 per cent; of implements and machinery, 108.8 per cent; and of live stock, 87.2 per cent. The average value of land and buildings per farm is $5,478, as against $3,442 in 1910.

The value of the 11,504 farms for which complete mortgage reports were secured is $61,069,552 and the amount of the mortgage debt is $23,575,778, or 38.6 per cent of the value. The average rate of interest made is 6.4 per cent. Fifty and two-tenths per cent of all farms operated by their owners are mortgaged, as compared with 46.9 per cent in 1910.

The number of white farmers is 29,047, of which 25,280 are native and 3,767 foreignborn. Of the native white farmers, 21,719 are owners, 506 managers and 3,655 tenants. Of the foreign born white farmers, 3,381 are owners, 59 managers, and 327 tenants. The 28 colored farmers comprise 21 owners, three managers and four tenants. Census Bureau Announces Population of United States and Possessions.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The bulk of its work completed, the Census Bureau at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon announced the total number of inhabitants in continental United States.

Indications are that the complete census, the 14th in the country's history, will show a total population for the United States, exclusive of insular possessions, of approximately 105,700,000. Nearly 12,250,000 persons are estimated to be living in insular possessions making a total of 117,950,000 persons under the protection of the Stars and Stripes.

The relative growth of the nation from 1900 to 1910, was 21 per cent but this rate is expected to be cut to at least 15 per cent. Census Bureau officials said, though stoppage of immigration during the war and by the heavy emigration during that period.

Agricultural Vermont.

The census report on agricultural conditions in Vermont is most gratifying. The number of farms has decreased in the past 10 years, some by absorption into other farms and some, one may believe, by abandonment. The total number of acres devoted to agriculture has also decreased somewhat, but as there were some attempts to farm impossible sites in the State, this need cause no alarm.

The other side of the picture is that, despite these decreases, the value of farm land has increased over 50 per cent and the improved acreage has increased by 3.5 per cent. This is a picture of growth and development. The value of the state's crops has increased over 100 per cent in the last 10 years. Production and value of dairy products likewise show a substantial increase.

All these things have happened in face of a declining agricultural population. The picture reveals that agriculture is not decadent. The farm is large and reasonably prosperous. There is no reason why this progressive movement should not continue, if Vermont will only utilize her opportunities for all-around development.—St. Albans Messenger.
